Baldwin Works to Be Converted Into Munitions Factory

By The Associated Press.
Philadelphia, Sept. 26.—Control of the Baldwin locomotive works here has been obtained by Charles M. Schwab of the Bethlehem Steel company and the Du Pont powder interests, according to apparently well authenticated reports tonight. The controlling interest, it was said, had been obtained by purchase of stock in the open market.

According to the report, the local works will be incorporated and converted into a plant for the manufacture of war munitions, railroad equipment and general steel products in association with the Bethlehem Steel company.

American Who Was Held for Ransom Has His Liberty

By The Associated Press.
El Paso, Sept. 26.—E. P. Fuller, manager of the Cudahy ranch at Santo Domingo, near Villa Ahumada, who was kidnapped recently for a ransom, said to have been equivalent to $2000 in United States currency, has been released and has reached Villa Ahumada.

A message received from him today stated he expected to reach the border on the first train north, but gave no details of his release or whether the ransom sent to the bandits Friday from here was paid.

New Gin at Winona.

Special to the Morning News.
Winona, Tex., Sept. 26.—In addition to the two gins that have been here at Winona for several years, Dabney White of Tyler has just completed and begun the operation of one of the finest and most up-to-date gin plants in east Texas.

After White began to erect his plant he made the announcement that farmers would get more for their cotton seed in Winona than ever before, and it has proven to be a fact, for now cotton seed are selling at from $25 to $35 per ton, which is far more than ever before, and as a result of the price being paid for the seed, more bales have been ginned and the season has just fairly opened.

With cotton seed at the price they are now selling and cotton at 11½ cents, farmers are all rejoicing.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY REITERATES STAND ON SHIPPING ARMS

PROTESTS AGAINST SUPPLYING OF ALLIES WITH AMMUNITION BECAUSE ENGLAND PREVENTS CENTRAL POWERS RECEIVING BY CONTROL OF SEA TRADE.

ACTION IS NOT ADMISSIBLE

Although U. S. is Willing to Export to Both Parties, Nation Criticized. Boer War Reference Is Not Applicable, Is Declaration of the Communication.

By The Associated Press.

Amsterdam, Sept. 26, via London, 3:15 a. m.—The Austro-Hungarian government, according to an official telegram received here today from Vienna, has in reply to the American note of August 12 relative to the manufacture of ammunition in the United States, reiterated the position taken in its protest of June 29.

The reply affirms that Austro-Hungary never intended to imply that it expected Washington would forbid American citizens to do a normal traffic in war material with the enemies of the dual monarchy, but solely protested against the economic life of the United States being made subservient to the production of war material on the greatest possible scale, whereby the United States became "militarized."

The note proceeds:

"According to paragraphs 2 and 3 of the preamble of The Hague convention, Number 13 of 1907, and supplemented by the general principles of neutrality, the Austro-Hungarian government considers the concentration of so much American energy on one aim, namely, the delivery of war material whereby although not international, but in fact effective support is rendered one of the belligerent parties, is a fait nouveau (departure) which constitutes the reference of the United States to supposed precedents.

"The dual monarchy is further of the opinion that the excessive export of war material is not admissible of both belligerent parties. The above mentioned fait nouveau should be sufficient reason for altering the existing practice of the United States, in regard to its subservience to neutrality. It suggests of the Austro-Hungarian government on the question of supply of war materials was intended to prove that it is in the power of the United States to open the way for commerce with the central powers, because this possibility has been prevented by the entente powers by measures which even the government of the United States regards as illegal.

"The reference by the United States to the Boer war is less apposite since at that time England did not prohibit commerce and therefore there was no question of the commercialization of South Africa."

The note points out relative to Washington's reference to the German publicist, Paul Ehrliche, that Ehrliche himself has publicly protested against one paragraph of his essay on "neutrality and naval warfare" being interpreted in favor of the United States.

Reply Not Received at Capital.

By The Associated Press.
Washington, Sept. 26.—The reply of Austria-Hungary to the American note on shipments of war munitions has not reached here. Officials manifested little interest in the continuation of the controversy, the view being held that so far as the United States is concerned the incident was closed.

It was recalled that Dr. Constantin Dumba, the Austrian ambassador, had advised his foreign office that further exchange of notes on the situation would be futile because of the absolute determination of President Wilson not to alter the position he had taken. Dr. Dumba's letter of advice never reached the Austrian foreign office, being intercepted when his messenger, James F. Archibald, was arrested in England.

Storms Over Country.

By The Associated Press.
Chicago, Sept. 26.—Storm areas covering the greater portion of the country during Sunday. The rainfall in the northern portion of the country reached from the North Pacific coast across the country to the North Atlantic coast, with only slight interruption. In the east and the Great Lakes region the storm was severe. The temperature in the upper Mississippi valley and the Great Lakes region took a considerable fall. In Chicago the rainfall amounted to more than an inch and a half and there was a drop in temperature from seventy to fifty-five.

Rains in Iowa.

By The Associated Press.
Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 26.—The cyclone reported approaching Jamaica yesterday passed sixty miles west of this island.

Only slight damage was caused by high seas. The United Fruit company's steamer, Almirante, for whose safety fears were felt here, arrived safely at Port Royal this morning. The vessel, however, passed through the storm zone and was considerably damaged.

CONFIRM MASSACRE ARMENIANS BY TURKS

STATEMENT GIVEN OUT BY SECRETARY OF INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

Verify Viscount Bryce's Report—Horrible Torture of Woman and Children Proven.

By The Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 26.—A statement confirming the massacre of Armenians in Turkey was given out here today by Prof. Samuel T. Dutton, secretary of the committee on Armenian atrocities, which was formed for the purpose of investigating the facts regarding the massacre and its relations to American interests and also to ascertain whether anything can be done to relieve the situation.

Other members of the committee include Charles R. Crane, Cleveland H. Dodge, John R. Mott and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise.

The statement says:

"A sub-committee has thoroughly investigated the evidence and has just made report to the full committee confirming in every particular the statement recently made by Viscount Bryce regarding the imprisonment, torture, murder, massacre and exile into the deserts of Northern Arabia of defenseless and innocent Armenians, including secretaries, women and children and their forcible conversion to Islam."

"The statements examined cover hundreds of towns and cities in which in many instances all of the Armenians have been killed outright or sent to the deserts after horrible torture and after horrible torture of men, women and children toward Mesopotamia, usually but a form of marching naked starving helpless and frequently naked refugees out into the mountains to be outraged and butchered."

"Included among these refugees and

Mr. Warwick has been in the government service since 1893 and has held a number of important positions. He served on the Taft economy and efficiency commission and just before his new promotion was assistant controller.

Victims are pupils and graduates from the American schools and colleges.

"The plan of procedure, which is identical in all parts of the country, seems to aim at the complete elimination of all non-Muslim races from Asiatic Turkey and already the aim is in fair way to accomplishment so far as the Armenians are concerned."

"In several places American property has been seized, Americans searched, imprisoned and expelled from the country, their letters and telegrams even from the United States consular office intercepted and their lives put in jeopardy."

"This, however, is of trivial importance compared with the work of destruction going on among the Armenians."

A LESSON FROM DENTON COUNTY.

Says the Denton Record and Chronicle:

"The revulsion of sentiment toward the suspended sentence law is indicated by the juries in the first week of the criminal docket of the local district court. The plea for suspension was refused in a majority of the cases in which pleas of guilty were received, whereas at a previous session of the court practically every prisoner eligible to receive the suspended sentence received it, regardless of whether he deserved it or not. It is worth noting, too, that two defendants granted a suspended sentence at earlier terms were back before the court again this term to enter pleas that the suspended sentences were imposed on them in addition to the penalties for the newer indictments. We believe the suspended sentence law is a good thing for the protection of young men guilty of their first offending, but it begins to look as if the law does not need amending if the juries to which the pleas are submitted are capable of the discrimination shown by the juries at the present term of court."

Our Denton contemporary is quite correct in its criticism of the lax manner in which the juries have employed the privileges conferred upon them by the suspended sentence act. But the offense has not been confined to Denton county. We have had numerous instances of it in this county. Such abuses tend to the encouragement rather than the discouragement of crime, hardened criminals as well as tender first offenders claiming and receiving the benefits of the law. To turn criminals loose upon society after the peace officers and attorneys have worked hard to convict the evil doers is an injustice not only upon society but tends to discourage these officers in the discharge of their duty.

It is not too much to hope, we trust, that the juries of this county will see the blunders that have been committed in the past in suspending sentences indiscriminately and in the session of the court that begins today, will see to it that men who are convicted of crime and ought to pay the penalty are not favored with an undeserved mercy in the suspension of their sentences.

"The special distinction for Waco is that she still has the running Brooks," observes the Dallas Democrat. And it is a greater distinction, we take it, than having an abiding Riddle.

Citizens of Waco found much of interest in the communication in the Morning News of yesterday from Mayor Riggins, setting forth the fact that he would not be a candidate for re-election as mayor, nor would he be a candidate for city manager, in case that office should be created, or any other office in the city that might be established. The announcement of his plans this early will enable any others who have aspirations in that direction to guide their courses accordingly and will clarify the agitation for a city manager by letting it be known that the mayor does not want the office created in order to provide a berth for himself. And the economies which Mr. Riggins has been instrumental in bringing about are gladly welcomed by the citizens of Waco. This paper has disagreed with the mayor on some questions, but not on that of economy in the expenditure of public funds and we are glad that he has been able to redeem his pledges in this direction.

THE PREACHER WHO FORGOT GOD.

A week ago yesterday the members of staid old Plymouth church, Brooklyn, were shocked, horrified and then moved to tears by the frank and sensational confession of their pastor, the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, successor to Dr. Henry Ward Beecher, that he had been playing the game of frenzied finance and had lost. Forgetting that "he that trusteth in his riches shall fall," that "a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold," and that, "to fear God and keep His commandments is the whole duty of man," he overlooked the high mission of winning men and women to God and right living and concerned himself most largely with the mercenary task of making money.

There is nothing culpable in the financial speculations in which the distinguished pastor has engaged for the last ten or twelve years, so far as we are informed. He has lost in his efforts to become rich, but he has enough money left to pay off all his business obligations and none but himself will suffer financial embarrassment because of his failure. The greatest regret of it all is that so gifted a man as Dr. Hillis has let pass by so many and so large opportunities unimproved. To let him tell his own story of that:

"To these young men (those studying for the ministry and who have read his books) I owe this statement—that often I have loved my books more than the poor; I have loved position and office and honor and sometimes I have thought of my own interests, when every drop of my blood and every ounce of my strength and every thought of my mind belonged to our schools, to the sick, the friendless, the poor, and to the boys and girls with their eager and hungry minds."

We do not fear any serious drawback to the cause of Christianity because of Dr. Hillis' confession of his spiritual dereliction. He is the exception rather than the rule among ministers of the gospel and now that he has seen the error of his way and promises to employ the remainder of his days in an effort to atone for his shortcomings of the past, he has the opportunity to attain to a usefulness that he has never known before. He admits that he has accepted worldly honors because he liked them when he should have remained more in obscurity, so far as the world is concerned, and put in the time communing with God. He sees now that a life of service is far richer and nobler than one devoted to the accumulation of wealth, even though wealth would afford large opportunities for doing good. He realizes that the larger part of his life, so far as years are concerned, has passed and that in the ordinary course of events he has but a short span of activity remaining.

"At best the longest life is short, all too short, for the noblest of tasks, that of the Christian minister," Dr. Hillis said in his confession. "Great is the influence of the law and medicine; wonderful the task of the jurist and statesman; marvelous the power of the press; great also the opportunity of the merchant and manufacturer who feed and clothe the people, but nothing can be higher than the call to shepherd Christ's poor and weak, and happy the minister who never has interpreted his ministry in terms of intellect alone or has never secularized his sacred calling, and who at the end of his life is able to say, 'Behold these are the sheep that thou gavest me, and not one of them is lost.'"

There are those who believe that Dr. Hillis is ruined, so far as his further usefulness in the pulpit is concerned. We do not share that opinion. On the other hand, we believe his greatest usefulness is just beginning, provided he employs the opportunity that is his. He has just come back to his senses. He appears to have just now got hold of the fundamentals of religion, to have realized a call to the Christian ministry is a call to self-abnegation service, that human souls and not so-called dollars should be the object of his endeavor.

This is a new gospel in Brooklyn and in many other places, as for that, but it is the old, old gospel originally ordained of God to point the way of salvation to a lost world, and had Dr. Hillis preached this gospel throughout the years instead of dealing with philosophy and ethics and history and the sundry other things that are employed in many pulpits today as a substitute for the gospel he would have been spared this great embarrassment and the remorse, mental and spiritual, which he shares over his countless lost opportunities.

The dispatches state that his congregation wept with him as he made his confession and pledged unflinching confidence in him. We are glad this is true and we hope that the regenerated and new-visioned preacher will remain at Plymouth and lead that congregation out into a life of Christian service such as that or no other church in Greater New York has experienced. With such an outcome Dr. Hillis can partially atone for his past misdeeds and overcome any evil effects from his marvelous confession. At any rate, his strong emphasis given to the fundamen-mentals in religion in his statement cannot but be helpful wherever the interesting story of his confession is read.

A PAID FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The Morning News finds itself in hearty accord with the recommendations made to Mayor Riggins by State Fire Insurance Commissioner Andrews looking to the establishment of a full paid fire department in this city and otherwise bringing the local department up to a still higher state of efficiency. Waco has outgrown the stage of the volunteer department, and though we have one of the very best departments in the state, there are some features about any voluntary department that will preclude as high a degree of efficiency as can be developed under a paid department.

All men in the active employ of the department should sleep at the stations, as the state commissioner suggests; they should be on duty every hour of the day, except when absent on stated or special leave; the assistant chief should be on a regular salary and give his whole time to the work; and the officers and men of the department should be responsible to the city administration rather than to the membership of the department.

There are social and political reasons why a volunteer fire department is preferable to a full paid department, but the protection of the lives and property of the people is the first consideration of the firemen and we can see no valid objection from the men who actually do the fire fighting to the department being placed on a paid basis exclusively. It appears that this must be done to retain the present low key rate of 21 cents in the fire insurance schedule and the convention that will soon convene to consider changes in the charter might well give consideration to the fire commissioner's demand for a change in the system employed here.

We are glad to note Chief Bauerle's statement that none of the apparatus belonging to the fire department has been used for "joy riding" since he became chief. It should have never been permitted at any time.

Remember the ward meetings tonight at which the delegates to the charter convention will be chosen. If you are interested in a good charter, one that represents the best ideals of the city and properly protects the interests of all the people, be on hand in your own ward meeting tonight and see that the right kind of men are chosen to represent you in revising the city's organic law.

According to the Hill County Review at Penelope, the men of that little burg are still singing that familiar bit of rag-time, "Let the Women Do the Work," and are also practicing the suggestion of the song in that when the time came to clean up the school grounds for the new term not a man showed up and only one of the male citizens sent in a cash donation. The women and girls cleaned up the grounds, but they should retaliate when the men ask them for any other work and remind the male of the species to "Let George do it."

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS

A DEPARTMENT DEVOTED TO THE FOSTERING OF MUSICAL INTERESTS OF WACO AND CENTRAL TEXAS.

By ZUMA WALLACE, Independent Phone 1607

Little Happening Locally.

It is not our rule to fill the space allowed for the musical column of the Morning News with articles clipped from musical journals, but as no local musical items have been handed in during the past week, the attached articles have been selected. They deal with subjects of vital interest to those active in the musical development of Waco.

The Euterpean club will soon begin regular work and every member should read this excellent paper, "The Mission of the Musical Club," by Mrs. David Allen Campbell. The article, "The Child Voice," by Olive Barbee Wilson, will interest both teachers and parents.

The Child Voice.

(By Olive Barbee Wilson)
I am led to believe that our splendid, energetic American citizens are very nearly ready to agree with Richard Wagner's opinion as to the position which occupies in the realm of art. Said he: "Voice is the oldest, the most genuine, and the most beautiful organ of music. The most manifold imaginable mixture of orchestral colors must appear insignificant in comparison with it." Though he referred especially to the singing voice, yet it is our privilege to consider this statement from a broad basis, and think of song and speech as a unit, for so closely are they allied to each other that it is almost impossible to study them separately and gain the best results.

In the past the majority of those who studied tone production have been students who intended becoming singers or speakers; the general public has not been educated to think of the matter seriously; it has not appreciated the necessity of learning to speak in a distinct and pleasing quality of tone. Consequently the value of such knowledge remains undreamed of.

As the future welfare of all things artistic depends upon the class of training given the children of the land, it is highly important that the child voice be diligently studied. Parents and teachers should learn the wide difference between voice care and voice culture and gain a more practical knowledge of the wonderful benefits to be derived from the right study of music.

The music lessons in the school room are too apt to savor of technic and text books, thus crushing the very life and beauty out of the subject. The development of tone, the correlating of reading and singing, the daily practice of rhythm in connection with tone are not given sufficient attention; in consequence the child is not receiving mentally nor physically the assistance which should result from the study of singing.

The private voice instructors have for many years decried the teaching of voice in the public schools, principally because they know that class work for the entire school life will not prove conducive to good vocal habits. Ensemble teaching is deceiving; especially does it seem so in handling children, and to overcome this stumbling block is the problem confronting all concerned in caring for the developing voice of a child.

Unless the training enables the pupils to lessen self-consciousness, unless it inculcates accuracy of thought, gives them the right sense of direction and aids in establishing higher ideals, music fails far short of fulfilling its mission. Music has occupied the attention of the thinkers of the world since the remotest antiquity and is considered the strongest of educational factors, yet it has received less serious attention than anything known to man.

It is for America to lift it to its high estate? If so, 'tis time to be up and doing.

The Mission of the Music Club.

(By Mrs. David Allen Campbell.)

Why do we wish to belong to a music club? Because in so doing we stand for some purpose in the community; because of the opportunity it affords for personal service. To the musician who enters club ranks in a spirit of helpfulness and harmony, a broader view of life is granted. To the retiring musician it gives confidence and poise; to the lonely musician, increased interest in life—recreation and companionship; to the ambitious musician, a broad and fertile field of usefulness in which to achieve worthy ends. The club is a bond which unites kindred spirits, and where one finds sympathetic friends. A club reflects the thoughts of its members.

May I point out some of the things each of us can do as we must do if we live up to the vision of the great work to be done?

Give your friends to understand your club does things. Rise above the petty things of life and strive to lift your club into a cleaner, sweeter atmosphere. "When a woman becomes an ideal club member she attains a deeper spiritual life. She looks for the time when the earth shall be a better place in which to live than it is now; to the time when the horrors of war shall cease, when there shall be no longer strife between capital and labor, but an equal division of the fruits of industry. When every musician, artist, composer and student in this broad land of ours shall have the fullest opportunity of realizing their highest possibilities."

Get on the same equality of footing, without distinction of wealth or talent, with the members of your club and meet every one half way. Don't talk so much about what you are doing, but ask others what they are doing.

Above all things be loyal to your club and to the officers of your club. Do not discredit the officers, no matter how imperfect you may feel them to be, but uphold them to the best of your ability. Never speak disparagingly of your club. If a message is brought to you, in song or speech, with sincerity and gladness, it radiates these qualities. If we all will be sincere and glad and selfish in our motives, think how our influence for good will extend. Not only will we accomplish our own work, but we will be known from coast to coast.

What is true of an individual also is true of a club. It is true of a club of the National Federation of clubs, is true of our mission as members, as a club, is to radiate sincerity and gladness; to be builders, and to cooperate in any movement inaugurated for the uplifting of the greatest of the arts.

"The dominant idea in the world today seems to be organization. The workers in every branch of art, science, mechanics, education and labor are organizing. The conviction is that only through organized and unified effort can a common good be achieved."

Musicians have been among the last to grasp the vision of organized effort. The National Federation of Musical Clubs is one of the pioneers in this direction, and it is one of our missions to write co-operation on the tablets of our memories, and every day let it be a dominant thought.

Then will we destroy the much used and much abused saying: "The profession of music has a tendency to develop the individual ego and establish a feeling of self-sufficiency." Wonderful things have been accomplished by our music clubs, reaching as they do nearly every city and hamlet in the country. They have demanded music in the schools, they have made possible the establishment and maintenance of orchestras in many cities, they have brought the world's greatest artists to their communities, they have raised money to educate deserving students, they have caused the public libraries to place on their shelves the best of reference books on music, as well as the music itself. They have sent out artists from their own clubs to small communities that are less fortunately supplied, and in all these and many other ways have caused an interest to be aroused in their localities that has stimulated the younger generation to serious musical effort, that has raised the standard of music in the churches, and is now paving the way for community music and a more universal demand for the giving of opera in our native tongue.

A movement of great moment was inaugurated in Chicago last fall—the national contest for American-taught artists. This movement resulted in the discovery of a number of very talented young people, and instead of offering a cash prize there was offered a place on the program at the biennial convention where these young artists would have the opportunity to appear before the most discriminating audience that could be assembled in America, and the prospect of engagements for the next season by Federated clubs, thus launching the young artist on a professional career in the most practical way.

What shall we do with this trust that has been given to us? The most important part of every building is its foundation, the foundation. The first seven years of life, we are told, determine the usefulness of that life. A structure built upon the sands will not endure.

The foundation of a great movement must be built with the stones of loyalty, enthusiasm, perseverance and charity. These cemented with love, energy and endeavor, will make a foundation that will defy the rain of criticism, or the cruel devastating wind of jealousy.

Will you, carry to completion this great movement? It rests with you, president and delegates of our Federated Clubs, to pledge support to this movement, to have brought to this convention the cream of the student body of America, asking you to give them opportunities to appear before your clubs in concert the coming season. They are our children. We must look after them, love them, encourage them. It is one of our missions.

We are now on the threshold of a great national awakening. The next few months will see history-making in American musical development. The time has passed when only individual interests can be considered. We are living in the great age since the world began, during the time of the world's greatest disasters, and during the time when man's equality (by this I mean the equality of man's) is becoming firmly fixed, for future use and happiness.

The mission of the National Federation of Musical Clubs is to speak to the great public in the one language all can understand and to use it to promote peace and happiness, to stand firmly together on all movements that will give an impetus to the spread of culture; to demand recognition by city, state and national authorities, and make them understand that good music must no longer be considered a luxury of the cultured, well-to-do class, but is a vital factor in the uplifting of the masses, and that appropriate music should be a part of the educational curriculum and community choruses; to show that music must be recognized as an accredited study, and that national conservatories must be established, and that they must seek to discover and support when young talent and creative art. They must be loyal to their own tongue and create a sentiment for song in English. The music club and teachers' association must realize their power in the community and seek to use that power in a practical, forceful way. Force is only obtained by combined effort.

Co-efficiency, co-sagaciousness, co-partnership, concurrence of ideas, concert action, the fruits of interests—these are the elements which will make such things possible. It is your mission to realize your power.

The National Federation has been heartily supported by many of the critics and writers of the day, newspapers, as well as the leading musical journals. It has, in fact, been this hearty co-operation between music clubs, newspapers, critics, teachers, artists and captains of musical industry which has made possible this wonderful festival, and a declaration that we have American music and musicians to be proud of, which declaration is the result of years of co-operation by an army of faithful workers, and has the concurrence of many competent judges.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Tick Eradication vs. Saloon Eradication.

Editor Waco Morning News:
Great effort is being made just now to create sentiment in favor of eradicating the Texas cow tick. Texas newspapers are using thousands of dollars' worth of space in the propaganda, and our Texas governor has announced his intention of asking for an appropriation of $100,000 of Texas money for the destruction of this pest that inflicts such discomfort upon the Texas cow and such economic loss upon her owner, the Texas cattleman.

To be sure, Texas people, who from their infancy have fed upon the milk of the Texas cow, should feel great sympathy for the cow in her affliction, and should contribute liberally of the public funds in response to the governor's appeal for the destruction of the tick and the fly and every other pestering parasite that preys upon the faithful "bosses" that fill the nursing bottles of the Texas cradle brigade.

But why should Texas statesmen like Col. William Green Stettin and Governor Ferguson and newspapers like the esteemed Dallas News, who can see so clearly the "imperative public necessity" for the destruction of the Texas saloon, which unquestionably inflicts upon the people of Texas a far greater economic loss than the cow tick, not to mention the untold and untellable loss and heartache which the saloon inflicts upon human beings rather than cows? Ought not the welfare of the liquor-cursed people to appeal to Texas statesmanship as powerfully as the woes of tick-infested cows? Why should Texas newspapers and Texas men see so clearly the necessity for saving the thousands lost to the cattleman through the ravages of the tick, and overlook the millions worse than wasted in supporting the $300 Texas liquor saloons, which do no good but inflict harm to the people of Texas? Any unbiased person can see with "half an eye" that the liquor saloon sustains the same economic relation to the body politic that the tick sustains to the cow. The tick subsists upon the blood of the cow without producing anything for the cow's betterment, and the saloon subsists upon the fruits of industry in the community without producing anything for the benefit of the community. The more business the tick does with the cow, the worse for the cow; and the more business the saloon does in the community, the worse for the community. This is so plain that a person who cannot see it needs to consult his physician and find out what is the matter with his head.

In view of this, why will not the Dallas News and other Texas journals editorially urge "saloon eradication" as vigorously as they urge "tick eradication," since any unbiased mind is bound to see that the saloon inflicts infinitely greater injury upon Texas and Texas people than the ticks do? Respectfully,

Sherman, Sept. 25. H. A. IVY.

TWO GLIMPSES OF RINGLING BROS. MAMMOTH CULINARY DEPT.

The Ringling Brothers' circus is a newly added production requires a cast of 1250 people, hundreds of dancing girls, a caravan of camels and tons of special scenery, costumes and electrical effects. This makes necessary the carrying of a stage of tremendous proportions.

One of the most interesting of the several circus departments is that in charge of the commissary. This official and his assistants do their marketing daily and in the city in which the show is to exhibit. More than 4000 meals are served every 24 hours, and at these the circus consumes approximately 3000 pounds of fresh meat, 300 dozen eggs, 500 pounds of bread, 150 pounds of butter, 200 pounds of coffee, 10 crates of vegetables and other items equally as large. For the stock and animal department there are used daily 10 tons of hay, 300 pounds of straw, 300 bushels of oats, 1500 pounds of beef, while no well behaved elephant would think of preparing for parade without his usual perfect city in itself, visiting a different locality almost every day for 200 consecutive days, traveling approximately 50,000 miles in a season, yet moving with more system and with less fuss and noise than any ranch of the army.

When annexed to this city Wednesday, October 6, it will add to the local population a babel-like throng of nearly 1400 people. These will come from every part of the world for the majority of the performers are foreigners and making their first tour of this country. The circus city will stretch over 20 acres and, in addition to its people, will comprise 735 horses, 41 elephants, 10 zebras and more than a thousand wild animals.

The circus will come here on 89 double-length railroad cars. This season's main tent is the largest the Ringling Brothers have ever used. It has been built not only to accommodate the circus program, but also arranged for the massive spectacle of Solomon and the Queen of Sheba. This morning cereal—a bale of hay.

H. S. DUKE OF DALLAS ADDRESSES Y. M. C. A. MEETING AT CRYSTAL THEATRE.

RESPONSIBILITY OF LAYMEN

Work of Church Must Be Carried on by Membership to Be Successful.

"Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." "Whatever thy hands find to do, do it with thy might." These were passages of Scripture held up as fit mottoes for the modern man in active life yesterday afternoon by H. S. Duke, prominent business man of Dallas, who was the speaker at the regular weekly services at the Crystal theatre under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. Mr. Duke made a thirty-minute address, in which he placed the responsibility of applying the teachings of Christ to practical life upon the laymen of the churches.

Special music was furnished by the splendidly trained choir of the Columbus street Baptist church. Special numbers much enjoyed were the full choir singing the anthem, "Make a Joyful Noise Unto the Lord," by Chas. H. Gabriel, and a bass solo, "Spend One Hour With Jesus," sung by H. A. James. Harry Lee Spencer, organist of the Columbus street church, was at the piano during the performance of the choir. For the singing at the beginning and close of the service, A. J. Flowers, boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A., accompanied on the piano, assisted by N. H. Melbert, membership secretary, on the cornet.

Introduced by Mr. Melbert, who is in charge of the religious activities of the Y. M. C. A., Mr. Duke opened his address by telling a number of anecdotes that brought smiles from the more than a hundred men present. The famous epigram of Dwight L. Moody, "If God is your partner, make your plans large," was taken by Mr. Duke as the keynote of his address, which dealt with the relations of business and Christ. "A great vision of a great class is needed to make a great man for a great task," said Mr. Duke. "We make the size of our own Christ. If we grow away from Him in our business, He becomes smaller and smaller to us. If we take Him into our business, He grows bigger and bigger. For that matter, we make the size of our own lives, in our homes, and in our business."

Progressive Men Loved.
"God loves progressive men. A man is headed toward the scrapheap when he gets careless and indifferent. God loves a man who has the 'Get up and get' God has nothing to do with a big man in a little situation, but He will help a little man with a big task."

"One of the most serious situations in our life is that the great majority of men have never discovered themselves. Look about you, and take stock of your qualifications and your opportunities. In this wonderfully live age in which we are living, a man is soon left behind unless he is up and doing all the time."

"We need a greater vision of all phases of life. Of life in the home—how many of us have directed our homes in such a manner that they have the proper atmosphere for the right development of children? We need a greater vision of the social life. We Christians and moral men are lying down on our jobs and letting the devil run society. We need to place ourselves in the front line of social activities. We should put on the brakes sometimes, but should not keep them on all the time. Some of our old fellows would want to be the whole show, and would want to stop everything."

Larger Vision Needed.
"We need a larger vision in our business life. God has as much use for the business man as He has for the preacher in his pulpit. God has a great field for the man between the plow handles or in the shop as there is for the teacher of the Word."

"We need a greater vision of politics. Politics in this country suffers because the leading men of the country, the moral and Christian men, do not take hold of it. The devil is running lots of things in this country, but the good men will not take hold."

"God trusts you with politics, with our homes, our churches, our governments, city, county, state and national, with society. God will trust you as far as you will let Him. You yourself make the limit. God wants all of us to have more money than we have, but He can't trust us with it. Few men can stand prosperity. The most dangerous time in a man's life is when he begins to make more than a living. That is the time when men forget God, forget society, everything but money."

"The need of the world is real men. God never made a hole or a corner for a man to crawl into, nor a fence for him to straddle. A man on the fence is a dishonor to men and God. No. 1, this place, 'but one day....' I was helping my father plant cotton in the field and was caught in the rain.... At that time I got very ill.... I suffered great agony in the lower abdomen, right side, and had two for every one he loses by his righteousness. That is where the faith comes in—in doing right and trusting to God for results."

Laymen Must Do Work.
"If Christianity is to be brought to the world in its practical aspects, it will be the laymen of the churches who will have to perform the task. The preacher studies the theory, which is his field. The layman can tell of his practical workings, how it may be taken into business and every other field of life. But don't try to make Christianity easy. Easy things are never worthy of us."

"Life is a trust fund, given to each of us by God. How are you using it? Are you alive to your opportunities for increasing your usefulness—building up your life—adding to your trust fund by just increase? It is a true saying that the man who never earns more than he gets never gets more than he earns."

Mr. Duke spoke yesterday morning and last night at the Columbus street Baptist church, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. F. S. Groner.

Adrian, Mich. — "I suffered terribly with female weakness and backache and got so weak that I could hardly do my work. When I washed my dishes I had to sit down and when I would sweep the floor I would get so weak that I would have to get a drink every few minutes, and before I did my dusting I would have to lie down. I got so poorly that my folks thought I was going into consumption. One day I found a piece of paper blowing around the yard and I picked it up and read it. It said 'Saved from the Grave,' and told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women. I showed it to my husband and he said, 'Why don't you try it?' So I did, and after I had taken two bottles I felt better and I said to my husband, 'I don't need any more,' and he said 'You had better take it a little longer anyway.' So I took it for three months and got well and strong." — Mrs. ALONZO E. BAKER, 9 Tecumseh St., Adrian, Mich.

Not Well Enough to Work.
In these words is hidden the tragedy of many a woman, housekeeper or wage earner who supports herself and is often helping to support a family, on meagre wages. Whether in house, office, factory, shop, store or kitchen, woman should remember that there is one tried and true remedy for the ills to which all women are prone, and that is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It promotes that vigor which makes work easy. The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

THEATRES

HIPPODROME.

"The House of a Thousand Scandals." Harold Lockwood and Mary Allison, talented young stars of the silent drama, who hold so firm a place in the hearts of the motion picture fans, are the featured players in "The House of a Thousand Scandals," a Mutual Masterpicture in four acts at the Hippodrome today and tomorrow.

Lockwood, tall, handsome, with a most exceptional personality, whose work in "The Lure of the Mask" and "The Secretary of Frivolous Affairs," preceding Mutual Masterpictures, brought him into the first rank of stars of the screen, as John Wright, a young man with many millions of dollars credited to his bank account, in "The House of a Thousand Scandals" delivers one of the most interesting characterizations ever filmed.

No less a success is scored by Miss Allison, the much heralded young blonde beauty of motion pictures, who was co-star with Lockwood in "The House of a Thousand Scandals." Miss Allison, whose portrayals in American productions has won her an enviable position in screen work in "The House of a Thousand Scandals," appears as Martha Hobbs, a farmer's daughter, a surly and crusty old creature, who, although possessing considerable means, compels his wife and daughter to live a life of drudgery.

Miss Allison's beauty, as striking on the screen as off, is by no means lost sight of in her portrayal of this lovely daughter of the hills.

"The House of a Thousand Scandals" is, as with the majority of the Mutual Masterpicture releases, a truly interesting story, fairly alive with heart interest replete with action, unusual climaxes and plentifully interspersed with humor.

Clio, Ala. — "I had been in good health until I was 15 years old," writes Mrs. A. L. Snell, of R. F. D. No. 1, this place, "but one day.... I was helping my father plant cotton in the field and was caught in the rain.... At that time I got very ill.... I suffered great agony in the lower abdomen, right side, and had two for every one he loses by his righteousness. That is where the faith comes in—in doing right and trusting to God for results."

Laymen Must Do Work.
"If Christianity is to be brought to the world in its practical aspects, it will be the laymen of the churches who will have to perform the task. The preacher studies the theory, which is his field. The layman can tell of his practical workings, how it may be taken into business and every other field of life. But don't try to make Christianity easy. Easy things are never worthy of us."

"Life is a trust fund, given to each of us by God. How are you using it? Are you alive to your opportunities for increasing your usefulness—building up your life—adding to your trust fund by just increase? It is a true saying that the man who never earns more than he gets never gets more than he earns."

REV. QUILL PREACHES ON VISION OF JOB

SCANDINAVIAN LUTHERAN PASTOR SAYS PATRIARCH SAW CHRIST.

SEES HIM AS A REDEEMER

Instances Given of How Job's Expressed Wishes Have Been Fulfilled.

Rev. M. B. Quill, pastor of the Scandinavian Lutheran church, preached last night on "A Vision of Job," taking as his text Job xiv:23-27. He said, in part:

"St. Paul says, 'All Scripture is given by inspiration of God.' It is certainly a great comfort to know that the Bible, on which we depend, is the Word of God and not human invention. St. Peter says, 'The holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost.'"

"Those who do not wish to believe the Bible have made the objection that if all Scripture is inspired by God, then why do we not have the same style of language all through? The powerful convincing style of St. Paul is not like the beautiful, flowing style of St. John."

"Our answer to this is that God made use of the nature that He had given these men. A man can play the same melody on a violin and a piano. 'Jesus Lover of My Soul' is the same melody, whether played on the violin or piano, although it certainly sounds different. The same melody is in the mind of the musician. So the will of God is in the mind of the writer of the Bible whether a powerful style or a smooth flowing style is used. God imports to them knowledge of His will in different ways. He speaks to them with articulate words of the human language in dreams and in visions when they were awake and also directly created in their minds knowledge of His will."

Job's Wish Fulfilled.
"The portion of Scripture, Job xiv:23-27, shows that God imparted knowledge to Job in a vision and shows us, moreover, that Job knew of his inspiration and the importance of his vision, for he says: 'O that they were printed in a book; that they were graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock for ever.'"

"Job's wish has certainly been fulfilled, for his words have been written in print in books; they have been translated into a great many languages, and being Scripture they will remain forever. The famous words of Job have surely been cut into lead and chiseled into rock. Think of the numerous tombstones inscribed with the fond assurance of a living Redeemer. The veil of time as it were is drawn aside and Job is permitted to look even into eternity itself."

It is not the past, the present or the future in general, but all together, past, present and future, in regard to Jesus Christ, the Redeemer. Although over 1500 years before Jesus was born, Job sees Him alive—later Jesus tells us, 'I am the same yesterday, today and tomorrow.' Job is to see with your mind's eye. Job sees not now as 'through a darkened glass' but clearly, that Jesus who was born in a manger, played in His father's carpenter shop, sat among the learned doctors in the temple and increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man."

"It may be questioned whether or no Job could say, 'Now I see my Redeemer' with the same knowledge as we have of the storm in Galilee, but Job has at once in his mind a great panoramic view of the eternal Son of God and now Job sees Christ as difficult to determine, but he surely saw the main act of a redemption of the lost and final reclamation of the saved on judgment day. He calls the object of his vision his Redeemer."

Meaning of Redeemer.
"The word translated, 'redeemer' originally signified a kinsman or near relative. Brigid hands were quite numerous in ancient times. These hands would capture a person, spirit him away and hold him for ransom. It was the duty of the nearest of kin to pay the sum for his release. So from this the word 'redeemer' at first meaning kinsman, acquired a new meaning—'redeemer'—one who redeems or buys back a captured person. Therefore Christ has received the name Redeemer."

"Job, who was captured by Satan when Abram fell from grace and we were held captive by the father of all criminals, Christ is the nearest of kind who came to our rescue. He is our brother who loved us so much that no ransom was too great for Him to pay. He redeemed us from all iniquity, from death and the power of the devil—both with gold or silver, but with his precious blood and with his innocent suffering and death."

"Job sees Christ as one who so graciously befriended us in general, but Christ is also as his very own redeemer."

"It is not enough that we know that Christ 'gave Himself a ransom for all.' Millions of people would not deny this, and yet will not be saved, for they do not accept of their own Savior. If we wish to be saved we must accept Christ as our own Redeemer, and live according thereto. And to show our faith by Christian works, let us take comfort from the fact that our Redeemer 'ever liveth to make intercession for us.'"

Christ Seen in Glory.
"But it is not only the humiliation of our Redeemer that Job sees, but also Christ in glory on judgment day. That 'last day' the sun and the moon shall disappear, all the stars shall fall, all the earth shall shake, mountains shall open up, the seas and the waves shall settle and roar." Then shall they see the 'Son of Man' coming in a cloud with power and great glory."

"And in the darkness which the sun and moon have left behind, He shall shine with a brilliancy inconceivable."

"The text which is in his heart there is no God, but the proud and haughty shall on that day 'go into the holes of the earth and into the caves of the rocks and into the Lord and the Lord alone shall be exalted on that day.' He shall stand when people shall say to the hills, 'Cover us.' It will be easily apparent that He is Lord to the glory of the Father. He is certainly comforting for Job as well as for us to know that He in whom we have believed will finally prove His supremacy in such a way that it will not be disputed by anyone. And 'this is the will of Him which hath sent me that of all which He hath given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day.'"

"It is a great comfort, an indescribable comfort, to know that He in whom we have believed shall raise us up again at the last day. And even though our body be destroyed we shall receive an incorruptible body and see Christ our Savior 'face to face.'"

EXCITING TIMES DURING AUSTIN FLOOD

WALTER ROGERS GIVES GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF SCENE ON BIG LAKE THERE.

Greatest Danger to Dams Comes From Log-Jam of Driftwood in the Colorado River.

Exciting times in Austin while the Colorado river was on its recent rampage are graphically described by Walter Rogers, who is now in the state banking department but who is an old Baylor man, in a letter to his brother here.

"Austin is seeing some quite thrilling times recently with its flood, says Rogers. 'It seems that we have a monopoly on those, for I do not hear of them in the other big rivers of the state. The Colorado, though, has been on quite a rampage for some two weeks, making life not at all one sweet song for those concerned in the construction of its dam at this place. We have had a young Niagara Falls brought right down here and set down in our midst.'"

"The lake had been drained and one night could walk around in its bed on dry ground; there were even tents pitched on what had been the bottom of the lake, sixty feet from its surface. The next morning the water had carried away the floodgates on top of the dam and was roaring over with a noise like continuous thunder."

"Where it struck the river below it made the most wonderful sight of boiling, seething foam and spray imaginable. The spray was so dense and dashed to such heights that one could not see across to the other side of the river at that point. In color, the water looked like so much liquid chocolate bubbling and boiling. A big $15,000 cruiser, very elaborately fitted out with staterooms and upholstered furniture, and had the boat moored to a great block of concrete in the middle of the lake. In spite of such anchorage, however, this and another of the big boats on the lake were swept down with the current, crumpled like an egg-shell when they were jammed through the gates of the dam, and dashed to pieces in the whirlpool below. Many of the smaller boats, of course, were lost."

"The greatest danger to the dam here before, is the enormous log-jam of driftwood which piles up against it. On the day I was out there, there was probably an acre of this, extending some twenty feet below the surface and presenting such a solid, immovable body that men were out walking around on it and trying to work it loose, with no success. They even put great cables around the jammed trees and tried to pull them out with a hoisting engine, but accomplished nothing more than the snapping of the cables. They even dynamited out there one whole night, but failed to dislodge the jam."

"I suppose the most thrilling experience that has yet happened in connection with the flood came to one of the workmen today while he was trying to work the logs loose where they were jammed in the gates of the dam. He was suspended over the water, but lost his hold and fell into the whirl and was rushed over the dam and into the rapids some fifty or sixty feet below. He lived through the experience, however, and managed to crawl out some distance down the river, little the worse for wear."

"Housewives and people who use milk should investigate its source."

Motorcyclist Thrown Seventy-five Feet, but Is Not Injured

Hundreds of persons inspecting the new race track at Cotton Palace yesterday received a fright when a motorcycle speeding at probably fifty miles an hour skidded on a curve of the track and the rider, Marcus J. Knowles, was hurled seventy-five feet forward almost under the wheels of another machine going at a tremendous speed.

In spite of the double escape from death in the flash of a second's time, Knowles was seen able to be on his way little injured. Several motorcyclists were speeding on the track. Knowles on a fast machine had overtaken other riders that had been holding the lead. He seemed to lose control of his wheel just before he reached the east turn in the track, probably by striking a rough place in the not yet perfect track. The banking is not high enough for the speed at which his machine was traveling, although he had negotiated it before at a tremendous clip. When his machine fell, Knowles shot forward, head first like a rocket. He lay still for several seconds and many feared he was fatally hurt. He was placed in a car, but it was unnecessary to take him to a physician. His machine was little damaged.

EXTENSIVE PURCHASES MADE

Easterners Delighted With Good Cotton Prices—Little Interest in Mexico.

Waco, Tex., Sept. 26, 1915. Mr. Frank E. Burkhalter, Editor of the Waco Morning News, City.

My Dear Mr. Burkhalter: I am writing to commend you for the effort you are making to arouse the representative element of the citizenship to the importance of the charter revision movement. You are doing right in urging our people to take interest in what is going on and to exert the influence that they ought to exercise in such matters.

I am not advised as to the nature and extent of desire in this community for material changes or entire abolition of our present charter. There may be more of that sentiment than has come to my knowledge. I simply state that I have heard very few expressions desiring changes in our present charter. We have not used the new charter two years. It is not a perfect instrument by any means, but it is not devoid of good features that can be used to good effect if the people will only take the interest that they ought to take if they hope to have good local government. I am not defending the charter because of any part I may have had in its making. Like all of the large group of citizens who worked unselfishly and diligently to create that instrument, yet in its entirety it was rejected. In my judgment it is capable of serving Waco for several years and in most wholesome manner. It carries out the principle of public sentiment. But if there is a demand for its abolition or its material revision, I for one shall certainly not stand in the way and will fully lend my aid to any movement that seems to lead to better service for this city than the charter now in force.

Doubts City Manager Plan.

It occurs to me that the change to what is called the city manager system seems to be the underlying purpose to give a valuable opinion because I have never lived where that system was in use, nor have I ever heard any testimony of anyone who had. For my own part, I would soon have a mayor, elected by the whole people and with plenary powers, as to have a city manager, elected by eight men and possessing what are the developments of this movement and to try to do my part as a good citizen for what may seem to be the best results for Waco.

Cotton Palace Board Will Meet Tonight

The board of directors of the Cotton Palace will meet in the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 8 o'clock tonight to continue their work of planning for the coming exposition. Louey Migel, treasurer of the association, will report on some contemplated attractions for the Warpath, which he visited at Hannibal, Mo., on his way home from New York.

Good progress is being made in all lines and the directors are confident that the 1915 Cotton Palace will set a new record in many ways. A large number of horses are here for the races and exercise daily on the race track, and work is going rapidly forward on the new grandstand.

Little Hope of Mrs. Madden's Recovery

The latest news from Mrs. J. B. Madden of Nashville, Tenn., received here last night by her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Fort, was that her mother was decidedly worse and that little hope was held out for her recovery. Mrs. J. B. Madden, another daughter, is now at Mrs. Madden's bedside. The friends of the family will be pained to hear of Mrs. Madden's turn for the worse.

NO REASON FOR IT

When Waco Citizens Show a Way.

There can be no reason why any reader of this who suffers the tortures of an aching back, the annoyances of urinary disorders, the pains and dangers of kidney ailments will fail to heed the words of a neighbor who has found relief. Read what a Waco citizen says:

Mrs. L. E. McCarley, 721 Taylor St., Waco, says: "One of my children was afflicted with weakness of the kidneys from infancy. There was no control over the kidney secretions. Bed-wetting was a frequent occurrence. The child was nervous and fretful and seemed to lose weight. One of the family had been benefited by Doan's Kidney Pills, so I got some at Wilkins & Forman's drug store. Two boxes rid the child of the trouble."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. McCarley recommends. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Postmaster General Passes Through Waco

Postmaster General and Mrs. Albert S. Burleson passed through Waco yesterday on their way from Fowler to Washington, D. C. They came in on the 4:30 Texas Central, leaving on the Katy Limited for Washington. They will reach the national capital Wednesday morning.

General Burleson declined to talk politics. He expressed considerable gratification over the increased attendance at Baylor university, from which institution he graduated a number of years ago. He was in Texas to attend his brother's funeral, visit his sister at San Antonio and to inspect conditions on his big ranch at Fowler.

People in New York are excited over the proposed billion dollar loan to the allies, according to Louey Migel, vice president of the Goldstein-Migel company, who with Mrs. Migel, returned from the east Saturday night. Mr. Migel said that when he left New York it looked like the allies would get about half what they had asked for.

Opinion is widely divergent in New York as to whether the proposed loan will benefit the United States or whether it will only aid in making twenty-five or thirty men immensely wealthy, said Mr. Migel. In his opinion, the proposition is about the same as lending money on a second mortgage and he does not believe it will prove such a benefit to this country as some people think.

Wherever he went, Mr. Migel found the easterners very much delighted over the good prices being paid for cotton over the south and especially in Texas. Many eastern firms are again beginning to send traveling men out over this territory, he said. Very little is heard in New York in regard to the Mexican situation, Mr. Migel says, the people there not paying much attention to it, apparently regarding it as a sort of a little family trouble.

The agitation for national preparedness for war has caused some uneasiness in the east, where so much money is involved in manufacturing industries, many people seem afraid that the United States is on the verge of a war. Every effort is being made, however, to quiet such apprehensions.

While in New York Mr. Migel made very large purchases for the six department stores at the Goldstein-Migel store and also under his personal supervision. Mr. Migel is very optimistic over the situation and has bought some very extensive new lines of goods which he is sure will please the citizens of Waco and Central Texas very much.

On their way back from New York, where they have been for about four weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Migel stopped off at Hannibal, Mo., to look over the Henry & Nowlin minstrels, which may furnish part of the amusement for the Warpath at the Cotton Palace this fall. Mr. Migel will make a report of his observations to the Cotton Palace directors tonight.

"We had a nice trip," said Mr. Migel, "but we were glad to get back to Waco again."

News Weather Dog Now Has Partner

Dawgunnit has a partner. Dawgunnit is the Morning News Weather Purp. The same canine of the morning face who starts off the day with a smile for hundreds. His partner is a boy. A live, American kid. The boy's circumstances in life are such that he is forced into business prematurely, being a newspaper salesman, commonly called a "nozzle."

That's his name, "Nozzle." He and Dawgunnit will have many things to say on weather, the "world's serious," the great European war and other things that the future holds in store. Right in the middle of the first page of the paper that tells of the happenings all over the world, Nozzle and Dawgunnit will appear every day, sometimes both together, at other times singly, but they will always hit the nail right on the head as to the timeliness of their remarks.

Nebraska Runaway Boy Is Caught Here

Walter Brown, aged 16, of Creighton, Nebraska, will be returning home within the next few days. Walter blew into Waco yesterday, arriving at about the same time that Chief of Police Guy McNamara received a telegram from the boy's father in Nebraska to look out for one runaway boy, with description.

Chief McNamara and Detective Craven rounded up Walter on the city hall square. He admitted his identity and expressed his willingness to go back home. The father is on his way to Waco to take the boy back with him, a telegram from Chief McNamara notifying him yesterday afternoon that the boy was being held here. Walter left his home in Creighton September 1, making his way on freight trains to Waco.

WARD MEETINGS TO ELECT CHARTER DELEGATES TONIGHT

Five delegates from each of the six wards of Waco will be elected tonight for the purpose of formulating amendments to the present charter, a call for ward meetings having been issued Saturday by Mayor J. W. Riggs. It is proposed to submit such amendments as may be prepared on December 1.

The hour fixed for the meetings tonight is 8 o'clock. The meeting place for the various wards are:

Ward 1—City hall.
Ward 2—West End Fire station.
Ward 3—Eighth and Mary, Cameron building.
Ward 4—Third and Mary, Navigator hotel.

Ward 5—East Ward Fire station.
Ward 6—North End Fire station.

Indications are that each of these meetings will be well attended and at a meeting last week, union labor men of the city planned to secure representation, although their plans were not made public. Quite a number of Waco's most prominent men have expressed themselves as being opposed to any changes in the charter at this time and it is probable that there will be some lively skirmishes to obtain delegates between the charter's friends and foes.

Each qualified voter of the city is eligible to take part in the meetings tonight and it is probable that efforts will be made to make each man voting first produce his registration certificate. The meetings will organize promptly at 8 o'clock and it is probable that they will be attended to in each ward is the election of delegates, unless some of the wards should instruct their delegates to either favor or oppose revision of the charter.
